

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A surface inspection apparatus for inspecting a shape of an inspected surface of an object to be inspected includes: a supporting unit capable of supporting the object in a state in which the inspected surface is in a substantially vertical state; and a moving state which moves the object in a substantially vertical direction while the inspected surface is maintained in the substantially vertical state.